GET TO KNOW OUR TEAM

MEET CHRISTOPHER SAIN,
New Parts Manager at Young Volvo

We're excited to welcome Christopher Sain into his new role as Parts Manager at Young Volvo. With years of hands-on experience across both service and parts operations at Young Trucks, Christopher brings a deep understanding of what it takes to support customers, technicians, and the business as a whole. In this Q&A spotlight, Christopher shares his journey, what excites him about leading the Volvo parts team, and his vision for continuing to strengthen our parts operation.

Q: Christopher, congratulations on your new role. Can you share a little about your journey at Young Trucks?

Christopher: Thank you! I joined Young Trucks back in 2018, starting on the service side before moving into the parts department later that year. Since then, I've had the opportunity to work in both front- and back-counter roles and support parts operations for Freightliner and Volvo as a Lead and an Assistant Manager. Learning the business from the ground up and taking on new responsibilities along the way really prepared me for this next step.

Q: What has been most valuable about learning the parts business hands-on?

Christopher: Being involved in day-to-day operations has helped me understand how every part of the process connects—from inventory and training to customer support. I've worked closely with teammates, helped train new hires, and supported department initiatives, which gave me a well-rounded view of what it takes to run a strong parts operation.

Q: What excites you most about leading the Young Volvo Parts team?

Christopher: I'm really excited about growing the Volvo parts business and continuing to build a reliable, customer-focused operation. Volvo's product line continues to evolve, and it's exciting to help bring those parts to market while making sure we're ready to support customers with the newest truck models.

Q: What are some key priorities for the Volvo parts operation moving forward?

Christopher: A big focus is on stocking the right parts for new Volvo truck models so customers experience less downtime and faster repairs. Another big focus is creating a well-rounded, knowledgeable team in both OEM and aftermarket to help our customers from every direction.

Q: How does the Volvo parts department support other areas of Young Trucks?

Christopher: Parts plays a big role across the organization. We work closely with Young Trucks Mobile Service to ensure technicians have fast access to parts in the field, and we also support the Young Trailer Shop by supplying the components needed to keep trailers road-ready. Strong collaboration across these lines of business helps us deliver better service overall.

Q: Outside of work, what keeps you busy?

Christopher: Outside of work I am a homebody. I love to be at home with my wife and daughters and playing with them definitely keeps me busy. They are my world.
